BASLOW ST. ANNE was formed into a parish 13 July, 1869, from the parish of Bakewell, and includes the hamlet of Bubnell: it is in the Western division of the county, hundred of High Peak union, petty sessional division and county court district of Bakewell, rural deanery of Eyam, archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Southwell, 8 miles west from Chesterfield, 12 south-west from Sheffield, and 4 north-east from Bakewell, and is situated on the east bank of the river Derwent, over which is an ancient stone bridge of three arches, leading to Bakewell. The parish is bounded on the north-east and west by a range of lofty hills and by extensive moors, and the situation of the village and its fine adjacent scenery cause it to be much frequented in summer by the inhabitants of Sheffield and other towns; since 1863 the parish has been governed by a Local Board, but under the "Local Government Act, 1894," it now has an Urban District Council, and is supplied with water from reservoirs on Heathy Lea and Coupold Roughts, the property of the Duke of Rutland; and there are gas works. The church of St. Anne, charmingly situated on the eastern bank of the river Derwent, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles with arcades of four arches, south porch, and a low tower at the north-west angle with octagonal broach spire and containing a clock and 6 bells, the 3rd and 5th mediæval, and the others dated respectively 1839, 1745, 1620, 1754: there are five stained windows, four being memorials: the oldest existing portion is the tower and spire, erected at the close of the 13th century: the nave may be attributed to the 14th century, and its west window is a good specimen of the Geometric period: the heavy battlements of the porch, nave and aisles are Early Perpendicular, and the nave has a flat Perpendicular roof: the rood loft, some stained glass, and a memorial to Robert Eyre, existing about 1730, have disappeared: in the north wall of the aisle is an iron plate in an oaken frame, with an inscription to Thomas Marple, 1742: and there are some small mural brasses to the names of Oddy and Grundy (1753-1790). The chancel has a mural monument to the Rev. John Barker M.A. for 30 years incumbent of Baslow (1824), and his eldest son, the Rev. Anthony Auriol Barker M.A. who succeeded his father, and held the living for the same length of time; another to Mrs. Stockdale, who died at the rectory, Baslow, in April, 1892, and one to the Right Rev. Frederick Barker D.D. some time vicar of Baslow, and Lord Bishop of Sydney and Metropolitan of Australia (1854-84), whose remains were interred in the churchyard: he was born at Baslow, March 17th, 1808, died at San Remo, April 6th, 1884: built into the west wall of the porch is a coffin slab of the 13th century bearing a floriated cross: in the vestry is preserved the veritable whip of the last church "dog-whipper:" there are 350 sittings: the church was restored and enlarged in 1853, chiefly at the expense of the Duke of Devonshire: the chancel was restored in 1864 and re-seated with oak choir stalls and a carved oak reredos at a cost of £350: the churchyard, enlarged in 1876 by the inclosure of about a quarter of an acre, is very picturesque, owing to a fine row of stately elms on the side adjoining the river, with old yews and trees here and there, and contains some ancient stone coffins and a few curious slabs of stone: south of the churchyard remain the basement steps of an old cross, now supporting a modern pedestal and shaft, with a sundial. The register, now in a dilapidated condition, dates from 1659, and contains numerous irrelevant interpolations. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £310, with residence, in the gift of the Duke of Devonshire K.G. and held since 1859 by the Rev. Jeremiah Stockdale M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge, rural dean of Eyam, and surrogate. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities are of considerable yearly value. The Baslow Hydropathic Hotel, erected in 1881, occupies a commanding situation under the shelter of the Yeld wood, and affords a picturesque view of Chatsworth Park. The Duke of Devonshire K.G. who is lord of the manor, and the Duke of Rutland K.G., G.C.B. are the principal landowners. The soil is clay and sand, on strata of sandstone and grindstone. The area, with the hamlet of Bubnell, is 5,609 acres of land and 26 of water; rateable value, £4,699; the population in 1891 was 864.
