

HARTINGTON is a parish, consisting of four townships, namely, Middle, Upper, Nether, and Town Quarters, of which Upper Hartington includes the hamlet of Burbage. The Middle Quarter and a portion of the Upper have been formed into the ecclesiastical parish of Earl Sterndale and will be found in this book under letter E. Burbage, another portion of the Upper Quarter, has also been formed into an ecclesiastical parish, which will be found under the head of Burbage. The Nether Quarter has been formed into the ecclesiastical parish of Biggin, and will be found under that heading. Hartington gives the title of Marquess to the Dukes of Devonshire.

HARTINGTON TOWN QUARTER is a township, in the parish of Hartington, on the borders of Staffordshire, with a station  $1\frac{1}{2}$  miles from the village, on the Ashborne and Buxton line of the London & North Western railway, which runs through the parish from south to north,  $9\frac{1}{2}$  miles south-west from Bakewell station on the Buxton, Matlock & Derby section of the Midland railway, 11 south-south-east from Buxton and 10 north-west from Ashborne, and in the Western division of the county, Ashborne union, petty sessional division and county court district, Wirkworth hundred, Buxton rural deanery, archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Southwell. A bridge over the Dove connects Derbyshire with Staffordshire. Under the provisions of the "Divided Parishes Act" a detached part of Hartington Town Quarter was transferred to Hartington Middle Quarter in 1882. The church of St. Giles is a stone building of the 12th century, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, transepts and a western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 3 bells: the church has four piscinæ: there is a brass to Ann Ratcliffe (1770), and monuments to Sir Hugh Bateman bart. of Hartington Hall, d. 8 Jan. 1824, and to Richard Bateman esq. of Middleton Hall, d. 1761: a memorial window was erected by John Sleigh esq. in 1859: the reredos, of Derbyshire marbles, was erected in memory of Mr. Flint: the stained east window of the south transept is a memorial to the Rev. Augustus Wirgman, for 19 years vicar of the parish, and to Jane Elizabeth his wife: in 1858 the church was restored by subscription, at a cost of nearly £1,000 and the bells were renewed in 1884: there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538, but until 1650 is very incomplete, and in a dilapidated state. The living is a vicarage, with residence, net yearly value £230, derived from 338 acres of glebe land, with residence, in the gift of the Duke of Devonshire K.G. and held since 1891 by the Rev. William Fyldes M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford. The vicarage house was built in 1857 at a cost of £1,400. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, with a Sunday school. The charities left in 1704 by Richard Edensor, in 1840 by Thomas Bateman, in 1853 and 1861 by Charles Flint, in 1873 by Edmond Goodwin and in 1893 by Miss E. Flint amount collectively to £70 yearly. Ores of different metal are found here, which, however, are little worked, owing to the low price of ores from foreign parts. Hartington Hall, now a boarding house, was built in 1611 by Hugh Bateman and is in a good state of preservation, having been restored in 1862 by the father of the present owner, F. O. F. Bateman esq. of Breadsall Mount, Derby. The Duke of Devonshire K.G. who is lord of the manor, Philip Beresford-Hope esq. of Bedgebury Park, Kilndown, Kent and John Sleigh esq. of Upper Norwood, are the principal landowners. The area of the township is 3,383 acres of land and 11 of water; rateable value, £3,797; the population in 1891 was 401.

HARTINGTON UPPER QUARTER is a township, adjoining Buxton, portions of which have been taken into the ecclesiastical parishes of Earl Sterndale and Burbage respectively and it forms the north-west extremity of the parish, in the Western division of the county, Wirkworth hundred, Ashborne petty sessional division, and in the union and county court district of Chapel-en-le-Frith. The Duke of Devonshire K.G. owns nearly the whole of this township. At Pannier's Pool bridge, near Black Clough,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  miles from Buxton, the counties of Derby, Chester and Stafford meet. Axe Edge is a mountainous height, in this township, 1,756 feet above the level of the sea, in which the rivers Dove, Wye, Dane and Goyt have their sources, these streams flow in different directions, the Goyt and Dane falling into the Mersey, and the Dove and Wye joining the Humber. At Brierlow (or Briarlow), about 3 miles from Buxton, a large cairn or barrow was opened in 1845, about 20 yards in diameter; in the centre, upon the level of the natural surface, were found a skeleton of large size, a bronze dagger in excellent preservation, some burnt human bones, small pieces of an urn, and a quantity of bones of rats. The area of the township, with the hamlet of Burbage, is 10,310 acres, of which about one-third are common and heath, being principally on gritstone, the inclosed land being mostly on limestone; rateable value, £8,499; the population of the township of Hartington Upper Quarter in 1891 was 2,939. A School Board of 5 members was formed 2 Feb. 1878, for Hartington Upper Quarter & Burbage; Louis Shipton, clerk to the board
